Danish Official Account of the Copenhagen Battle.

DENMARK. COPENHAGEN, APRIL 7

From OLBERT FISCHER, Commander in Chief, to his Royal Highness, the Crown Prince.

ON the first of April at half past three o'clock in the afternoon, two divisions of the English fleet under Vice-Admiral Nelson and a Rear-Admiral, weighed anchor, proceeded eastward towards the Middle Ground, and shortly cast anchor again south of the same. This force consisted of twelve ships of the line, several large frigates, bomb and other vessels, making in all thirty-one sail. On the 2d of April, about nine in the morning, the wind S. E. these ships as well as those lying north of the Middle Ground under the command of Admiral Parker, weighed anchor. The ships of the line and heavy frigates, under the command of Vice-Admiral Nelson, drew up towards the King's Deep, in order to take their station successively near the place which I was intitled to defend. The bombarding and smaller vessels took their station nearer the town; and the division of Admiral Parker, consisting of eight ships of the line and several smaller vessels, cruized with the utmost press of sail towards the south, to the right wing of the defence.

At half past ten o'clock, the northernmost ship of Admiral Nelson's division passed those of ours, which lay most to the south. I gave that ship which was within shot, the signal for battle. The guard ships, Provesionen and Wagrien, and shortly after the Totland (between which and the guard ship Dannebrog, the first English ship, being 74 guns, kept itself fast by means of an anchor) obeyed the signal by a well directed and well supported fire. The remainder of the ships then came up, and some of them having failed in front of the ships that first cast anchor, and others behind them, they formed a close line; which, as it extended only north of the line of battle ship Zeland, engaged only two-thirds of the force entrusted to me. There being no fire from the Three Crown batteries, nor from the ships Elephant or Adors, and very little from the frigate Hesperen.

In about half an hour after, the engagement became general. Twelve line of battle ships, of which one was of 80 guns, and almost all the rest of 74; and from six to eight frigates were on one side. On the other side were seven guard ships, one of which only was of 74 guns; the rest of 64 and under; two frigates and six smaller vessels. The enemy had every where two ships for one of ours; and the guard ship Provesionen had, besides the Rear-Admiral and a ship of the line, two frigates against her, which were raking her from stem to stern, without her being able to return a shot.

Were I only to relate, in the manner of an history, what your Royal Highness has seen, as well as the citizens of Denmark and of Europe; that this which I shall call an unequal contest, was maintained with unexampled bravery for the space of four hours and a half; that the fire of the power engaged with us was already exhausted, that several of the English ships, and among the rest, that of Admiral Nelson, fired only single shots; that this hero, at the very moment, and during the very heat of the battle, sent a flag of truce on shore to require a cessation of hostilities. When I have to add the account I received of two English ships of the line having struck, but that they hoisted their flags again, as soon as they were reinforced by other ships: Under those circumstances, I may be permitted to say, that the ancient fame of Denmark in Naval wars has this day shone forth with incredible lustre, that I have to thank Heaven for having had all Europe as a witness to the same.

Besides, the balance turned against Denmark in a quarter where it was not likely it should. The ships that were first, and to the fourth of those most severely attacked, and even the Provesionen, had almost all their guns dismounted, and were obliged to yield to a superior force.

About half past 11, the Dannebrog line of battle ship, close to which Admiral Nelson lay for some time, was so much damaged, that I went with my flag on board the Hesperen; but instead of this the Dannebrog fought under the streamer that had been hoisted. At the end of the battle, she had 270 men killed and wounded.

About half past two the Hesperen was so shattered, had so many killed and wounded, and so great a number of guns dismounted, that I caused the streamer to be hoisted instead of my flag; and as the Zeland had all her rigging shot away, I betook myself to the Three Crown Battery, from which place I commanded the north wing which was slightly engaged with Admiral Parker's division, until I received at four o'clock the orders of your Royal Highness to keep in the midst of the battle.

Then, that part of the force which lay to the south of the Three Crown Battery, as far as the frigate Hesperen, fell back upon the shore, and was reinforced by a superior force, cut her cable and got under way. The ship Hesperen after having received several shots, had her masts and rigging shattered, and lost a number of men killed and wounded; she brought back into the Crown by the gun boats Nybor and Aggerboek, and the Dannebrog shortly after the battle blew up.

Besides the injury which the enemy evidently sustained, I am convinced that their loss in men and in their ships was very considerable. And the advantage of the conquerors consist only in useless ships, in cannon mostly spiked, and powder thrown overboard.

The number of the killed and wounded cannot as yet be given; but I suppose it may amount to 1600 or 1800 men. Among the killed, I am grieved to name the Commanders of the ship Infideltiten, and the frigate Cronenburg, Capt. Kurab, and First Lieut. Hauch, with several other brave officers. Among the wounded is F. Brann, the Commander of the Dannebrog, who has lost his right hand.

I want language to express my sense of the unexampled bravery of the officers and crews. The battle itself can alone describe it. OLBERT FISCHER.

The Post-Yard, April 3, 1801.

Of Napper Tandy.

LIFFORD, [Ireland] April 7. Napper Tandy's trial is over. After several attempts to put off the trial were refused by the Court, Mr. Tandy's counsel threw up their brief. Mr. Tandy then addressed the Court in a short but impressive speech, avowing every thing set forth in the indictment, and said his heart disdained a falsehood.

Judge Chamberlain begged he would weigh well the consequence of such a declaration; that sentence of death must instantly follow.

Mr. Tandy answered he was not afraid to meet death in any shape; he knew well the awful sentence of the law—he was ready to receive it with the resignation of a Christian, and with the firmness and fortitude of a man.

The Judge (Chamberlain) then passed sentence, which is to take place the 4th of next month.

We have since learned that Mr. TANDY has been pardoned, by his Britannic Majesty.

Attempt on BONAPARTE.

PARIS, [France] April 8. Attie Criminal Court, on the 6th inst. Saint-Regent, alias Perrot, and Carbon, alias Petit-François, were found guilty of having attempted the life of the Czar's Consul, by an infernal machine, and were sentenced to death. They have appealed to the Tribunal of Cassation, and are lodged in the Baillie. Five others implicated in the attempt, were sentenced to three months imprisonment. Amongst them were three women, and one Priest. Ten were acquitted.

Affairs of Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, [Sweden] March 25. The King, who was upon his return to this city, on hearing of the approach of the English fleet, immediately resolved to join the army upon the English coast. The following Swedish ships are fitting at Carlscrona, viz. Gustavus III. Ad. Poling, 64; Wadrow, 64; Drift gheta, 64; Tapperriten, 64; Wofa, 64; Forsigten, 64; three frigates of 44 guns, and two cutters. They are all ready for sea. The sea is not yet clear of ice; nevertheless the troops will embark in a few days.

Of Austrian Affairs.

VIENNA, [Germany] March 25. Gen. Mack's army is retreating into France. The breaking up of Archduke Charles's army, which was expected to take place by the end of last week, has not yet happened; and all the regiments have preserved their respective situations. Recruiting for the regiments progresses with great activity.

Of Egyptian Affairs.

PARIS, MARCH 24. A packet has arrived at Toulon from Egypt, which it left the 4th of February; and brings dispatches from Gen MENEZES, at Cairo, to 25th January. The Justice and Egyptian frigates, with troops, arms, &c. arrived at Alexandria from Toulon, in January. The French army is well fed, clothed, paid and disciplined; and retain their ancient enthusiasm. The Egyptians are friendly to the French, and pay their taxes with exactness. Mourad Bey continues faithful and amicable; and Djazzar Pacha refuses to acknowledge the authority of the Commander in Chief, the Grand Vizier, whose army is wasting by famine, sickness and discontent. Commerce begins to flourish both in the Mediterranean and Red-Sea ports. The French manufacture cloth, hats, dimities, silks, excellent handkerchiefs, wax-cards, beer, and leather. Some coffee plantations are already laid out.

CONSTANTINOPLE, MARCH 10.

The fleet of the Captain Pacha has arrived at Rhodes. Admiral KEITH, who, on the 18th ult. was still at Rhodes, is expected to make a landing in Egypt about the 28th.

More of the Battle of Copenhagen.

LONDON, APRIL 18. The following are the official Notes which passed between Lord Nelson and the Prince Royal of Denmark.

No. I.

"Lord NELSON has directions to spare Denmark, when no longer resisting; but if the firing is continued on the part of Denmark, Lord NELSON must be obliged to set on fire all the floating batteries he has taken, without having the power of saving the brave Danes who have defended them.

"Dated on board his Majesty's ship Elephant, Copenhagen Roads, April 2, 1801.

(Signed) "NELSON and BRONTE, Vice-Admiral, under the command of Admiral Sir HYDE PARKER."

No. II.

"His Royal Highness the Prince Royal of Denmark has sent me, General Adjutant LINDHOLM, on board of his Britannic Majesty's Vice-Admiral, the Rt. Hon. Lord NELSON, to ask the particular object of sending the flag of truce."

No. III.

"Lord NELSON's object in sending the flag of truce, was humanity! he therefore consents that hostilities shall cease, and that the wounded Danes may be taken on shore, and Lord NELSON will take his prisoners out of the vessels, and burn or carry off his prizes, as he shall think fit.

"Lord NELSON, with humble duty to his Royal Highness the Prince of Denmark, will consider this the greatest victory he ever gained, if it may be the cause of a happy Reconciliation and Union, between his own most gracious Sovereign, and his Majesty the King of Denmark.

(Signed) "NELSON and BRONTE."

"On board his Majesty's ship Elephant, Copenhagen Roads, April 2, 1801."

So late as the 15th instant, the Truce granted by Lord NELSON had not been broken, and the most sanguine hopes were entertained that the dispute with Denmark would be amicably adjusted.

Those who estimate the importance of the naval triumph at Copenhagen by the Danish official rhodomontades, have only to be told that the Abbe STEVENS, at Berlin, on learning the news of the important victory obtained by Lord NELSON over the French fleet at Aboukir, consoled himself by carelessly saying:—"Very well—we have only lost timber and men."

PARTICULARS

Relating to the battle of Copenhagen, not before published.

Not one of the flot fired on the fleet on passing the Sound, touched a ship. The Swedish batteries at Helingsburg did not fire a gun. The squadron under Lord NELSON consisted of the Edgar, 74; Ardent, 64; Monarch, 74; Glatton, 54; Elephant, 74; Ganges, 74; Polyphemus, 64; Defence, 74; Russell, 74; Bellona, 74; Isis, 50; and Agamemnon, 64; and La Desirée, 44; Amazon, 38; Blanche, 36; and Alcmene, 32, frigates. The Danish line of defence was manned with 12,000 soldiers and sailors. The Agamemnon, Russell, Bellona, Elephant and Desirée got on ground, owing to the difficulty of the navigation.—The first article of the truce was respecting the delivery of a 74 gun floating battery, which after striking, hoisted her colours. The Danish officers, in an interview with Lord NELSON, denied she had ever struck; Lord NELSON replied, "Upon my honour she did," and added, "if she was not immediately given up to the boats, he would haul down the flag of truce." The Danish officers said, "they wished to treat with Lord NELSON in person." "I am Lord NELSON," replied the hero, "be, here is my son."—At the same time throwing aside his green dreadnought, shewing the stump of his right arm, and exposing also his three stars. The ship was immediately given up. A letter from an officer on board the Ganges, says, "Our prizes being chiefly hulks, and their hulls most marvellously shot to pieces, we shall be obliged to destroy the most of them; but there are eleven fine new seventy-fours in the harbour, which we must soon have." The following is a list of the Danish ships taken, viz. Wagrier, 50 guns; Albslein, 64; Rensberg, 34; Jutland, 50; Cronenberg, 26; Spereris, 18; Shark, 28; Charlotte Amelia, 96; Holstein, 64; Sea Horse, 20; and Provessten, 64; besides 1 sunk, 1 burnt; and 1 sunk, 1 burnt, 1 destroyed aground, since.

Miscellaneous Articles.

LONDON, APRIL 18.

The correspondence between England and France still goes on.—Dispatches from Paris, it is said, have been received by Government this morning.

Sweden it is said, has signified her disposition to negotiate: the death of the Emperor PAUL, it is supposed, has operated not a little to effect this change in the politics of the Court of Stockholm. The Danish troops are reported to have evacuated Hamburg, of which town it is expected the Prussians will take possession, as, according to the last accounts, they continued to occupy a part of the Electorate of Hanover. Some hopes, however, are entertained, that the late events at Copenhagen, as well as the change of politics which is supposed to have taken place at Petersburg, will have some effect in moderating the claims of the Court of Berlin.

PARIS, APRIL 14. The death of the Emperor PAUL has caused the most lively sensation throughout this capital: Moralists commemorate the fate of a Prince, who had purchased with several years of absolute submission, the right of reigning some time longer. Politicians assert that his demise will have a considerable influence on the future destinies of Europe; this is merely conjectural, and does not so immediately concern the Republic of France.

LONDON, APRIL 17. Our readers will recollect that in March, Lord HAWKSBURY, in a note to the Swedish Baron VON EHRENSWALD, on the subject of the Northern Confederacy, said, "His Majesty has already repeated his determined and unalterable Resolution to insist upon the acknowledgement of the principles of those maritime rights which have flood the test of ages, and have been considered the best security for the JUST RIGHTS and privileges, as well of NEUTRAL as belligerent powers." As this declaration was made before the events of the Emperor's death, and the Copenhagen battle, it cannot be supposed that Great-Britain will now recede from it; and of course, if the Northern Powers persist in their system, the war in the North is not to near a termination as many imagine.

APRIL 18. One cannot be surprised that the defenders of the Northern Confederacy, now happily dead of an apoplexy, should seek consolation under that circumstance and the calamity which has happened to their friends in Copenhagen. We think, however, that they lean upon a reed, if they have no better hopes than those assigned in their leading paper yesterday upon an expression in the Ukase of the new Emperor of Russia. This Prince avows his intention to follow the system of Catharine the Second; he will therefore, says this print, forbear taking any decisive part in the quarrel of France and other European powers.

Now we are compelled to bid the Opposition despair their charm, for certainly the Czar ALEXANDER does not mean that he will follow the system abandoned by the late Empress; but the system upon which he was acting when death put an end to her glorious reign.—Had they possessed, as upon a former occasion, a Representative of Opposition at the Court of St. Petersburg, they would have known that her Majesty had agreed to march forty thousand troops against the Republicans, and that this army was only the vanguard of the forces she had determined to employ in the suppression of the revolutionary principles and unprincipled ambition which threatened every power in Europe. It will be no easy matter, therefore, to convince any man, that to follow her system is to forbear taking any decisive part in the quarrels of Europe.

The only courts in Europe which go in mourning for the death of PAUL I. are those of Berlin and Paris.

NEW-YORK, NEW-YORK, MAY 19.

DISPATCHES relative to the Algerines, from our Consul at Malaga, were brought out by the brig which arrived here yesterday from that place.—They are said to be of a very interesting nature.

The 30th ult. ALBERT GALLATIN, Esq. left New-Genova, for Washington, to take charge of the Treasury Department of the United States; of which he has been appointed Secretary by President JEFFERSON.—And so we go.

CONNECTICUT, HARTFORD, MAY 18.

The annual session of the State was closed on Thursday last.—The House chose CALVIN GODDARD, Esq. Speaker. A sermon was delivered before the Executive and Legislative bodies, by the Rev. Dr. TRUMBULL, of North-Haven. The vote for Governor were counted, when the whole number was found to be 13,307; of which His Excellency JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Esq. had 72,156.—Mr. LAW, the Candidate proposed by the Whigs, had 49,380. JOHN TREADWELL, Esq. had 9,066; of 14,770. Ephraim Kirby, Esq. the Jacobin candidate had 49,380. The old Assistants had an equally honorable support, as had ANDREW KINGSBURY, Esq. Treasurer, and SAMUEL WYLLYS, Esq. Secretary.

In no one instance within our recollection, has this anniversary produced more marks of sincerity and substantial gratification.—The re-election of ALL the officers of government, by a number of votes altogether unexampled, after such violent and indecent attempts, to render them odious to their fellow-citizens, and at a time, when if ever, it was to be feared, that the public mind might become in a degree bewildered, is a lesson to Jacobins, which must certainly have some tendency to make them despair of revolutionizing Connecticut. They will learn at least, that the people of the State have not looked with an indifferent eye, upon their attempts to subvert their government, under the cloak of "Thank-givings," and civic feasts. At the present election, all honest men shewed signs of unfeigned pleasure at the complete success of federalism in Connecticut, over the children of democracy; as well as at the high proof of the attachment of the citizens to their "steady habits." The concourse of people was unusually great, and the numbers and appearances of the Clergy, have not been at any time more respectable, and venerable. It gave universal pleasure to see so many of these pious, and worthy men at a festival, which is never more honored than by their general attendance.—At the same time, let not the people suppose themselves secure, unless the vigilant spirit which is now so happily awake, can be kept awake. Beings, which have every thing to gain, and nothing to lose, will forever be bold, and industrious; and they are too often successful. LET THIS TRUTH NOT BE FORGOTTEN.

A melancholly event occurred at Dedham on Monday last. Two young persons, (Mr. JASON FAIRBANKS, and Miss ELIZA FALES) of that place, who for some time have had a warm attachment to each other, but which unhappily received obstructions, met by appointment in a thicket adjacent to her father's house, in the afternoon of that day.—Soon after Fairbanks appeared at Mr. Fales', covered with blood, and shewing a bloody knife to one of the family, said, it was the knife with which Eliza had killed herself; that she then lay dead in the thicket, and that he had attempted to destroy himself, but was unable. The relatives of the young lady hastened to the spot, and found her weltering in blood, speechless and expiring.—Her body was much mangled, having been stabbed in several places, her arm and hand were wounded, and her throat cut in a most shocking manner. Her cries were heard near a quarter of a mile by some of her female acquaintance. Her companion, though he walked to the house, had his throat cut, and various stabs in his breast, bowels, &c. He is, however, yet alive; and was on Thursday committed to goal, to take his trial in August next. The remains of the young lady were interred on Wednesday last.

Boston.

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1801.

Yesterday we were favored by Capt. ATKINS, with files of French papers to the 14th; Dutch to the 14th; and of London to the 18th, in the evening, of April. Their principal contents have been anticipated: Such as have not been given this day.

The negotiation between Lord NELSON and the Danish PRINCE ROYAL, continued on the 8th April. Conjecture was extremely busy as to the result.

Communications between France and Great-Britain, were continually making.

FROM LONDON, APRIL 18.

[PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE.]

"I AM informed, that a satisfactory answer has been received from this government, respecting the capture of our vessels bound to the enemies' colonies with articles the growth of the mother country."

"The only obstacle to a GENERAL PEACE is the French army of Egypt. When evacuated, this country would be ready to treat."

"The buoys have been replaced in the Elbe. No more inquiry in Hamburg about English property since the defeat of the Danes."

FROM ST. SEBASTIANS, APRIL 16.

Capt. WADSWORTH, informs, that a French army had entered Spain, on its march to invade Portugal; and had arrived in the vicinity of St. Sebastians.—The last Paris papers mention the march of the army of observation towards Bayonne.

Accounts from the West-Indies, of a recent date, mention, an expedition of 10,000 troops being on the point of proceeding from Martinique against Guadaloupe.

The Legislature for the year ensuing will meet in this town, on Wednesday next.

It is said that President JEFFERSON has refused to issue Commissions to some of the Judges appointed by Mr. ADAMS. We know not if this charge be just: If it is, we shall only ask, whether it is not "feeling power, and forgetting right."

DAVID L. BARNES, Esq. is appointed and commissioned as District Judge of Rhode-Island.—It is TRISTRAM BURGESS, Esq. the acting District Attorney who is the temporary officer. Mr. BARNES' political character is unexceptionable.

The Aurora of the 18th says, "Mr. MADISON occupies apartments in the President's house at Washington." Query! Does the President of the United States keep lodgers? Or is it the intention of the Secretary of State to spunge the United States out of house rent?

Citizen PICHOU, Charge des Affaires of the French Republic, is on a visit to New-York. The conduct of this gentleman, since his residence in the United States, we learn, has been wholly unexceptionable.

THE NAVY.

The Essex frigate, of 32 guns, Capt. PREBLE, has left New-York; and the Congress frigate, of 36 guns, Capt. SALTER, has left this port, for the Naval Dock, at Washington. The Augusta ship of war has been sold for 13,350 dollars. The U. S. ship Commodore has been knocked off for 19,300 dollars.

"And oh, protect the hardy tar,
"Reward his honest merit,
"And what again you're plagu'd in war,
"He'll show his matchless spirit."

OLD BALLAD.

DIED.—At New-York, DAVID VAN HORNE, Esq. Adjutant-General of the State of New-York. The cause of his death has not been ascertained. He was a warm and able supporter in this excellent citizen and officer.—At Lynn, James Newhall, Esq. Et. 60.—Benevolence of heart, and integrity of conduct, distinguished the many years of this useful citizen. In public and private duties he was just without compulsion, charitable without ostentation, and devout without hypocrisy.—Such a man could not fail of being beloved while living, and regretted when dead. At Lynn, Mrs. Hannah Burrill, the amiable consort of Mr. John Burrill.

At Camden, 3d inst. (drowned) William Molineaux, Esq. formerly of Boston, merchant, Et. 48. At Richmond, V. Mrs. Polly Hovey, Et. 23, wife of Mr. Henry Hovey, formerly of this place.

Yesterday morning, Mr. Alexander Baker, Et. 72, an honest worthy citizen. His funeral will be from his late dwelling-house on Copp's Hill, to-morrow afternoon, half-past 5 o'clock, when his relations and friends are desired to attend, without further invitation.

The Fount.

The success of the British arms at Copenhagen, has put John Bull in fine spirits—This has been exhibited in acts of benevolence, rejoicings and festivity; and, from the Theatre, the faithful thermometer of the political weather, the following was instantly produced; and received with the most marked applause, at Drury-lane.

ONCE more let FAME her Trumpet sound,
To speak our Seamen's worth;
Once more those Foes whom envy join'd,
Have felt BRITANNIA'S wrath:
By PARKER and by NELSON led,
All opposition's vain,
At Copenhagen's gates our Tars
Have crush'd the haughty Dane.
Again our guardian Angel smiles—
Old England must be free;
Her Sons proclaim her through the World
The Mistress of the Sea,
Her toils and labors to reward,
"Fill War, at length, shall cease;
And Denmark's fall the signal be,
Of Happiness and Peace.
